From Our Contemporaries

LET US FACE THE TRUTH

Charles H. Joseph, The Jewish Criterion, Pittsburgh, Pa.

A well-known journalist told us that our opinions do have some weight throughout the country, therefore our attitude toward Zionism creates a feeling of uneasiness in some quarters. We know from experience that considerable criticism has been expressed of our comments since the Arab riots and the publication of the commission's findings. The question is, shall a journal be honest with itself and with its readers or shall it accommodate its position on subjects of vital interest to Jewish life, to meet the wishes of certain groups? Shall we write what we think some would like to read or shall we realize that we have an obligation to our people and try to show them the light as we see it? The pity is that so many take the whole Palestine question so lightly that they fail to inform themselves of the facts. There is nothing to our mind that is so likely to have a far-reaching effect upon the welfare of Jewry the world over as the condition of the Palestine movement. We would like to please the political Zionists and say they are right and that they should be encouraged in their ambitions. But we can not because we believe that they are not in the right. Years ago we discussed the question with the leaders of Zionism and expressed our opinion then and we have never found cause to change it, to the effect that the political aspirations of the Zionist party would eventually end in disaster for the Jews in Palestine. They waved us aside and refused to take our counsel seriously. They were exalted. Nothing could or should stand in the way of triumphal march of Zionism. But times do change. And so do opinions. If the irreconcilables and the bitter-enders among the Zionist leaders persist in disregarding facts they should be held responsible for whatever evil falls upon their coreligionists in Palestine in the years to come. Now get this straight. We are in favor of the development of Palestine as a home for the Jews. We are not in favor of Palestine as THE Jewish Homeland. Nor do we favor ever a Jewish state. We favor an agreement whereby the Arabs will have a proportional share in the local government. We favor the adoption of legislation which will remove all suspicion from the mind of the Arab that the Jew desires to usurp his power or his place in Palestine. Unfortunately too much ill-advised Zionist propaganda has been spread which gives the Arab that impression. It is strange how stubborn some of our people are in this matter. They insist on being blind. It is not enough that the large majority of Jewish leaders look upon the political aspirations of the Zionists as a dead issue because we still see those aims stressed by certain other leaders. They have no patience with adverse criticism. They resent as treasonable utterances those objections that call for modification. In some ways they remind us of the bitter-enders among the Prohibitionists who consider that anyone who suggests modification an enemy of the Constitution. Another type of fanaticism. Now let us consider the following statements with a clear and unprejudiced mind, if such a thing is possible. Vincent Sheehan is an international correspondent. He has spent much time in the Near East. We are going to quote him at length because he simply corroborates what others who have expressed themselves on the same subject. Let us not say that he is prejudiced; let us not say that he doesn't know what he is talking about. On the contrary let us consider that he represents the sentiment and the opinions of a goodly percentage of the British people, and for that matter of those of other countries. If you can answer him well and good, but don't dismiss his statements as unworthy of your careful consideration. We believe that Mr. Sheehan has no axe to grind. We think, whether his ideas be right or wrong, he believes in them. Now let us read what he has to say. He is discussing the Commission's report:

Who would have expected a British government's commission to admit so clearly, thirteen years after the fact that nobody knows what the Balfour Declaration means? Yet the Commission does admit this by urging the government, with almost plaintive eloquence, to make a new set of definitions of that famous utterance and its by-products, the mandate clauses dealing with the Jewish national home and the rights of non-Jewish peoples. Nothing is easier than to define the Balfour Declaration; the difficult thing is to find a definition which can be called permanent. In asking Mr. MacDonald and his cabinet to make still another definition, the Commission is only asking that the Zionist policy be pushed into another phase to be changed again the next time a definition becomes necessary.

It is suggested by this report that the gentlemen who made it (always excepting Mr. Snell) do not believe the Zionist policy in its present form to be feasible. The causes of the riots of last summer, as listed by the Commission, can be boiled down to one: the Zionist policy. The remedy for the troubles of Palestine, the Commission suggests in its set of recommendations, is to curb the Zionist policy. Presumably a new definition of the Balfour Declaration would be one way of doing this; limitation of Jewish immigration, and of the activities of the political executive of the Zionists in Palestine, would be others; a revised land policy, and a representative legislature in the country, would complete the work. Zionism would enter a new and less aggressive (but certainly also less enthusiastic) phase if these suggestions were adopted. The question is, how much support will Zionism receive from the Jews of the world when its activities are so circumscribed? Less, surely than in the past. Even a race whose history is one long disappointment can hardly be expected to go on forever putting its money on such a doped horse.

One can regard the Zionist experiment as a profound and disastrous mistake, as I do, and still feel very sorry for the Zionists at this juncture. With their combination of persecution mania and hysterical nationalism, they are nevertheless idealists; they have risked a great deal in this enterprise, for which many of them have died. Zionism has drawn out some of the briskest energies of the most fascinating, and one of the most gifted of peoples. An elan of this quality evokes the pity and terror—has the genuine aesthetic significance—of a Biblical episode; it is like the crossing of a Red Sea. With what exultation did these thousands of young Jews march forward ten years ago, at the dividing of the waters! Yet if there is anything in a tendency, it can be seen that only betrayal and disappointment lie in store for them. The clear tendency ever since the war—and most clearly expressed, in a sort of climax, by this Commission's report—is to limit and circumscribe and diminish the Zionist pretensions, a bit here and a bit there, so that of the original resounding claims which caused the

Lawrence B. Cohen, of 575 Park Avenue, New York, gave a dinner in that city May 21 in the main ballroom of the Ritz-Carlton for Peter Bercovitch, M.P., and Mrs. Bercovitch, who were there to see their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Tanburn, who were married on March 24 in Montreal and returned on Monday from their wedding trip. The ballroom was decorated to represent a camp in the Rocky Mountains. The guests passed through a rough log cabin into a room transformed by spruce and pine into a mountain glade. Huge boulders were covered with Spanish moss, while a grotto occupied one end of the ballroom. The whole was lighted as though by the moon. The tables for eight were decorated with centre pieces of dwarfed foliage and tiny mountain lakes. Among the guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Leo S. Herzog, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Ullman, Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Oppenheim, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Knopf, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Ellinger, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert H. Maass, Mr. and Mrs. Bernard K. Marriages

Notkin-Larner

The marriage took place in London, England, on May 26, of Miss Anne Sybil Larner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Larner, formerly of Quebec city, to Dr. Louis J. Notkin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Notkin. Dr. and Mrs. Notkin will spend their honeymoon in Switzerland, Italy and France, and will return late in June to live in Montreal.

Rabinovitch-Elkin

The marriage of Anne, daughter of Mrs. H. Elkin, and the late Mr. Elkin, to Nat Rabinovitch, was solemnized Wednesday May 28, at Beth David Synagogue with Rabbi Hershman officiating. The bride was given in marriage by Mr. and Mrs. M. Kaufman. She wore an ivory satin gown with lace yoke. Her veil of Belgian lace was in cap style held in place with clusters of orange blossoms and she carried a bouquet of lilies. She was attended by her sister, Miss Lily Elkin, as maid of honour, wearing a lemon color flowered georgette gown, with hat and shoes to match and carrying a bouquet of roses. Mr. Lou Axelrod was best man.

The train-bearer, Katie Elkin, sister of the bride, and the flower girl, Libby Rabinovitch, wore flesh color crepe frocks. The flower girl carried a basket of sweet peas. Irving Rabinovitch was page boy. Mrs. Elkin, mother of the bride, wore a black georgette gown with hat and shoes to match. Mrs. H. Rabinovitch, sister-in-law of the groom, also wore black georgette with hat and shoes to match. Their corsages were of American Beauties.

Approaching Marriages

The marriage of Idalene, daughter of Mrs. M. Kaufman, and the late Mr. Kaufman to Morris Bruker, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. Bruker, will be solemnized June 8 at the home of the bride, Hutchison Street.

The marriage of Tillie, daughter of H. Libman, to Abraham Weintraub, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. S. Weintraub, takes place June 29, at Beth Solomon Synagogue.

The marriage of Bertha, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. Terrer, to Moe Leibovitz, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. Leibovitz, takes place June 11 at the Carmen Sylva.

Engagements

Mr. and Mrs. Philip Marcus announce the engagement of their daughter, Sylvia to Moe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rubin Covshoff. Wedding October 12th.

Bar-Mitzvahs

David Nemeroff, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hyman Nemeroff, Jeanne Mance Street, was bar-mitzvah Saturday, May 24, at Bnai Jacob Synagogue.

IN MEMORIAM

LAING: In loving memory of our dear brother Charlie,
Though you are not here,
Your memory is very dear
And we are very proud
You are always in our crowd.
Always missed by sisters, sisters-in-law, brothers and brother-in-law.

In loving memory of our beloved son, Charles Laing, who passed away May 31, 1925.
It is five years since we parted
You are always in our hearts
Your love will be with us
Till we will be no more.
Always remembered by father and mother.

A dynamic, revitalized Judaism was predicted by Mrs. Maurice Steinfeld, of St. Louis, president of the National Federation of Temple Sisterhoods, in an address on "The Jew of This Generation" before the closing luncheon of the 41st season of Temple Emanu-El Sisterhood, held in the Mount Royal Hotel Tuesday. Since the pragmatic ethics of Judaism coincided so closely with the scientific social thought and the spiritual approach of the day, Judaism should be a tremendous force in the world.—Mrs. Steinfeld stated it was part of the "mothers in Israel," to see that this poetic and picturesque religion was not sacrificed to the modern menace of standardization.

Among the 180 guests at the meeting was a delegation of ten members of the Beth-Israel Sisterhood of Plattsburg, headed by its president, Mrs. Levy. She pointed out that there was a definite connection between the Montreal and Plattsburg communities, the first Jewish wedding in Plattsburg having been performed by a Montreal rabbi imported for the occasion.

Reports were submitted by the retiring president and secretary, Mrs. Arthur Simon and Mrs. Leo Fingard. Its outstanding feature, which was social work, included assisting the Neighborhood House, serving luncbes to the orphans at the Baron de Hirsch Institute, co-operating in the campaigns for the Jewish Federation of Philanthropies and the Jewish Hospital, and sewing for the poor. It also contributed to the furnishing and decoration of the Temple and entertained the children of the religious school at the various festival celebrations. Money for these activities was raised through bridge parties, showers, a food and fancy work sale.

The retiring president, Mrs. Simon, was presented with a fitted overnight bag by the members of the board. In making the presentation, Mrs. G. Fischel, an honorary president expressed appreciation.

The guest speaker was introduced by Mrs. I. M. Rubinovitch and thanked by Rabbi H. Stern.

Officers elected: honorary presidents, Mrs. J. Kruger and Mrs. G. Fischel, president, Mrs. J. Lewinson; first vice-president, Mrs. J. N. Neumann; second vice-president, Mrs. H. E. Davis; treasurer, Mrs. M. Margolick; corresponding secretary, Mrs. I. M Rubinovitch; recording secretary, Mrs. J. Roston.

The following committees were also appointed: entertainment and programme, Mrs. Sidney Isaacs, Mrs. George Shapiro, Mrs. J. N. Neumann and Mrs. Arthur Simon; social service, Mrs. Alfred Michaels and Mrs. Leo Fingard; social service floral fund, Mrs. W. H. Robinson and Mrs. E. P. Van Guen; hospital visiting, Mrs. S. Medine, Mrs. George Goldstein and Mrs. E. Regal; religious school, Mrs. Leo Neumann, Mrs. Arthur Simon and Mrs. H. W. Robinson; sewing, Mrs. J. Wiener and Mrs. A. Friedman; membership, Mrs. Anna Rost and Mrs. H. W. Robinson; floral and decorating, Mrs. Charles Goldstein; house purchasing, Mrs. H. E. Davis, Mrs. E. P. Van Guen and Mrs. G. Fischel; publicity, Mrs. J. P. Levee; refreshments, Mrs. Sol Vineberg, Mrs. M. Silverstein and Mrs. Louis Wolfe; Temple attendance and telephone, Mrs. J. Wiener; visiting, Mrs. J. Lewinson, Mrs. Arthur Simon, Mrs. J. Kruger and Mrs. G. Fischel, Mrs. Arthur Simon presided.

The annual faculty dinner given by Rabbi Stern for the teaching staff of the Temple School took place at the Mount Royal Hotel Sunday, May 25th, at 7 p.m. Among those present were: Dr. and Mrs. Lyon Bercovitch, Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Lewinson, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur S. Leonard Irving, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Albert, will this Saturday morning be called to the reading of the Law, in celebration of his bar-mitzvah.

Last Saturday morning Morton Bloomfield addressed the Junior Congregation. The honour of opening the Ark was given to Isadore Shugar and the following were called to the reading of the Law: Bernard Besner, Joseph Aber, Jack Fraid, Mortimer Kastner, Marvyn Goldfine, Morton Bloomfield, Mark Goldenberg, and Mortimer Greenberg. The Haftorah was chanted by Mortimer Greenberg and the honours of Hagbah and Gelilah were given to Moe Steinberg and Bernard Millman, respectively.

Last Sunday morning the final examination in religious school in history was given to the 7th and 8th year classes, and this coming Sunday they will be examined in customs and ceremonies and current events. Examinations for classes 4, 5 and 6 will be held the next two Sundays, June 1st and 8th. In the lower classes teachers will arrange their own time for the examinations.

The pupils of all the classes in the Hebrew School will be given oral as well as written final examinations. Written examinations for the regular classes will be held Wednesday and Thursday afternoons, June 4th and 5th, and the oral examinations on the afternoons of June 9th and 10th. The examinations for the Extension Classes were held this past week on Tuesday and Thursday, May 27th and 29th.

At the recent meeting held by mothers of pupils in the graduating class the various details in connection with the graduation exercises were discussed. This committee to take charge of the plans was elected: Mrs. S. Boulkind, chairman; and Mesdames M. L. Levine, A. Z. Cohen, J. Kaufman, I. Lesser, I. I. Selig, J. Salomon, B. L. White and E. Wisenthal. Graduation exercises of the Religious School will be held on Sunday evening, June 8th, when the diplomas and prizes will be awarded to the graduates. At the conclusion of the exercises the parents of the graduates will be at home to their friends.

The closing exercises of the Religious School take place Sunday afternoon, June 15th, when a program will be presented by the Dramatic Club, under the direction of Joseph W. Gordon. The program will also include Hebrew numbers given by pupils of the Hebrew School and songs by the school. Prizes will be awarded to pupils of the Hebrew School and the Sunday School who rank highest in general proficiency, effort and progress.

The editorial staff of the School Paper, the S. H. R. S. Echo is preparing a combined Shevuoth and graduation number to appear June 8th.

Deaths

Israel R. Rubenstein, died Wednesday, May 21, at his home, 3167 St. Urbain street, after a long illness. Mr. Rubenstein was in his eighty-second year. He was president of Rubenstein Brothers Limited, and was for 52 years Parnas of the Spanish and Portuguese synagogue. It was through his efforts, and those of D. A. Ansell, former consul-general for Mexico, that a grant was obtained from Baron de Hirsch for the founding of the institute, of which he was treasurer for about 20 years. Mr. Rubenstein was born in Poland and came to Montreal when he was two years old. He spent most of his life here and was well known as an art collector. He is survived by three brothers, Alderman L. [illegible] Rubenstein, Lazarus and Jacob, and by one sister, Mrs. Rachel Kent of Brantford, Ontario.

The funeral was held from his home at 2.30 p.m. Thursday, [illegible] 23, burial in the Spanish and Portuguese cemetery.

Sunday evening, [illegible] Haltrecht, age 50, died [illegible] Victoria Hospital after a brief illness. The late Mr. Haltrecht was born in Plock, Poland, the great-grandson of one of the founders and champions of the Mussar movement in Russia and [illegible] early part of the ninet[illegible] known under the [illegible] (Toldes Noech). In 19[illegible] Mr. Haltrecht moved to Berlin, where he lived from [illegible] when he moved to Palestine. In May 1924 he arrived in Montreal with his family and lived until his death. He is survived by his widow; three sons, Harold and Albert, of Montreal, and [illegible] Berlin, Germany, and two daughters, Margot; and by one brother, M. S. Haltrecht; and five sisters, Mrs. Adolphe Pipersberg, [illegible] Zimmer, of London, England, Mrs. M. Puterman, of Plock, Poland, and Mrs. L. Teichner, of Tel Aviv, Palestine. Funeral took place from home, 5187 Jeanne Mance Street to the Russian Polish Cemetery.

"In 'Lazarus Laughed' the soul of O'Neill is revealed," Rabbi Eisendrath said, "and he becomes a veritable prophet of future religion. This play deserves to have a place in the history of humanism which is sweeping our contemporary civilization, for he enunciates a faith which might become the salvation of the world. Only life and laughter is the theme of this great prophet of today. Man has forgotten the laughter that marked his childhood days, and cities have become prisons in which men hide from life. Men pass like rain into the sea, but the sea remains and so man remains. Millions of laughing stars above flicker for a moment, grow mellow with God and depart only to return again. And so man is born eternally in the dust of men. There is but dust and stars, life and God and laughter."

Mrs. Rose Henderson, president, expressed the thanks of the Current Events Club to the guest speaker.

Student Wins High Honors

Miss Rachael Chait, graduate student in the department of English at McGill University, who will receive her master's degree at the convocation Thursday is the winner of a teaching fellowship at Radcliffe College, the women's college at Harvard, according to an announcement at the university Tuesday.

Miss Chait is a graduate of Baron Byng High School. She obtained her Bachelor's degree last year with first class honors in English, and was awarded the Shakespeare gold medal in English language and literature.

Awarded a second fellowship at the end of the present session from Bryn Mawr, Miss Chait refused this to accept the award from Harvard.

Two students, Miss Vera Shlakman and Lionel Rubin, both of Montreal, tied for the Montreal manufacturers' graduate fellowship in economics and political science. Miss Molly Planz won the Governor General's Gold Medal in Modern Languages; Lillian Frances Willanski won special certificate for great distinction in the general course in arts. In the school of commerce, Max Guze was awarded the Lieutenant-Governor's Silver Medal for the best average in the four-year course in mathematics.

synagogues of the world to hold the ancient service of triumph in 1918, very little now is left. Still less will be left in the future as the inexorable historic tendency shown in this report continues its course.

FREEDOM IN THE PULPIT

Bnai Brith Messenger, Los Angeles, Calif.

It's not an epidemic of resignations from the pulpit, but the few resignations from the rabbinate recently given prominence in the news, should give not only the rabbis but the laymen a good deal of food for thought.

Close on the heels of the resignation of Rabbi Feinberg who hurled a verbal attack on the synagogue as an institution comes another relinquishment of the pulpit, caused in certain respects by a similar reaction to the synagogue and its environment. This time Rabbi Mitchell Salem Fisher of the Congregation Shalom, New York, is the rebel.

In both cases these rabbis rebelled against that which seemed to them inconsistent with the idealism of the pulpit. Both of them categorized the rabbinate as exalted salesmen, entertainers and what not, and in no uncertain terms gave it as their opinion that the rabbis were at the mercy of the trustees who permitted no freedom of expression. We do not attend either to defend or to denounce these rebelling rabbis, but we will commend them for their courage in leaving the pulpit, or rather those pulpits in which they found themselves hampered in self-expression.

The tragedy of the pulpit is not that it does not permit the fullest expression of unhampered opinion and thought—that is a natural concomitant of every human institution to a greater or lesser degree—the tragedy is that there are a great number of occupants of pulpits, whether in the synagogue or in the church, who remain there in spite of the cramping of their ideals—men who have not enough of the courage of their convictions, be they right or wrong, to act on their convictions.

And while we are on the subject of personal freedom of expression in the synagogue, it is interesting to read a portion of the by-laws of the Los Angeles Jewish Institute, a recently organized institution, of which Rabbi Herman Lissauer is the leader. It will be recalled that Rabbi Lissauer, finding himself cramped as the rabbi of Temple Emanu-El, some six months ago resigned to organize the Jewish Institute. The portion of the by-laws which will arouse considerable interest follows in part:

The Leader shall have absolute, complete and uncontrolled charge of the Institute's educational program; shall define such program. He shall have absolute freedom of speech, thought and expression in the conduct of such services and in giving such lectures or any other lectures or speeches or services wherever given or conducted. It is the declared policy of the Institute that it's Leader's expression on any public question merits careful attention and deliberation; that the choice of a Leader does not imply that he shall faithfully represent the minds and attitudes of the Institute or of its members—accordingly he shall not be condemned, molested or harassed by the trustees for any public or private expression on any topic whatsoever.

COAST COPPER

Further unofficial news from the west is that announcement will soon be made of the erection of a concentrator on the Coast Copper property. The report cannot be checked up as Mr. J. J. Warren, president of Smelters, is out west at present. Furthermore, it is understood he will sail for England early this month in connection with the company's business.

VIPOND CONSOLIDATED

Vipond's mill is now said to be handling around 300 tons daily with grade running $7.50 per ton. This means monthly earnings of about $70,000. Ore reserves are sufficient to carry on at this rate for over a year while additional ore is being developed.

LOWERY PETROLEUM

Lowery Petroleum, which has now been frozen for about three weeks, is still off production in a frozen condition, according to an Imperial Oil report, as no diamond drilling outfit is available for cleaning it. It is probable that some obstruction has augmented the freezing, and drilling will be necessary to bring back big production.

OKALTA OILS

Okalta No. 1 well has now been brought back to its full normal flow by running in the diamond drill and establishing circulation. Obstructions were encountered at 800 and 900 feet, showing the cause for the temporary lessening in the flow. Okalta No. 3 has run 8 inch casing to 4,1000 feet and is now in the lower Dalhousie sands or Fernies. Okalta No. 2 is drilling in the lower Fernies at approximately 4,500 ft.

MONALTA OIL

Monalta No. 3 on the Bickley Dome, Red Coulee field, was spudded in lately. This well which lies between Cosmos No. 1 and Monalta No. 2, will be drilled with rotary tools and is well located on structure. Rapid drilling time is anticipated, R. E. Kennedy is in charge of operations.

Commonwealth's Red Coulee well is being closely watched as it stands just above Sunburst, where the big gas flow should be encountered. The well should be drilled in over last week end. The crew are battling cavey formation and drilling is slow.

TURNER VALLEY OUTPUT

April production of Turner Valley shows a sharp falling off, a good two-thirds of the decline being attributed to the freezing off of Lowery Petroleums and the Home wells. In addition, Regent and Royalite No. 15, which produced in March, did not deliver in April. Total deliveries for the month to the Imperial and Regal refineries amounted to 87,278 barrels, as compared with March deliveries of 105,835. The Regal total was 9,361 barrels and the Imperial 77,917.

MERLAND OIL

While important developments are understood to be underway in Merland Oil Company's affairs, the situation at the field is also understood to be responsible for current strength in the strength in the stock. Officials of the company report a large increase in the gas flow in the lower Fernie shales and believe the well to be very near the top of the lime. Will use oil ciculation and Sheldon-Burden when in lime proper. This well hit a record flow of gas in the Dalhousie sands a few months ago.

ZIONIST CONFIDENCE IN BRITAIN BREAKING, LIPSKY DECLARES

The order of the British Colonial Office suspending Jewish immigration into Palestine, is called a "dastardly violation" of the Mandate granted to Great Britain by the League of Nations in an official statement issued by Louis Lipsky, President of the Zionist Organization of America, in which he expresses the views of American Zionists with regard to the action of the British Government.

The confidence which Zionists have reposed in the British Government is on the verge of breaking, Mr. Lipsky declares, saying that the only way for Britain to regain the confidence of millions of Jews is to order, without delay, the opening of the doors of Palestine. Pointing out that the suspension of the 3,300 immigration certificates is a purely political move and has nothing to do with the economic situation in Palestine, Mr. Lipsky emphasizes the fact that High Commissioner Chancellor had already approved the issuance of these certificates as economically justifiable.

It was said at Zionist headquarters that unless Great Britain changes its course with respect to Palestine that drastic action will be taken by the Zionists of America, in consonance with Jews throughout the world. Mr. Lipsky's statement was as follows.

"In spite of what has happened during the past week, we do not hesitate to say that we still trust the professions of friendship on the part of the British Government. Since last August, the Prime Minister and Mr. Henderson, as well as Lord Passfield, have time and again, privately and publicly, declared themselves as determined to uphold the Mandate and the Balfour Declaration, and to act justly and fairly toward Jewish interests in Palestine. But they have a queer way of showing friendship. In terms of action, every practical step of the Government since August has led further and further away from just and fair dealing. Friendly words have been followed by injurious deeds. Surprise has followed surprise.

"It would be unpardonable self-deception to blink the facts any longer. The burden of doubt grows heavier and heavier from month to month. The earlier promises have been absorbed in the later promises, and only frustration has followed in the difficult task of maintaining a confidence in the Mandatory Government, which weakens to the point of breaking. It is impossible to conceal the anxieties that trouble every heart interested in the development of the Jewish National Home, in accordance with the terms of the Mandate. It is impossible to refrain from protest and indignation.

"The intervention of the Colonial Office in suspending the labor schedule for the next six months, after it had received the approval of the High Commissioner, who presumably had made a most thorough economic investigation of the facts, is the most serious blow to confidence. It makes for a breakdown of faith. From August until May vacillation and doubt have led to what is practically the temporary suspension of Article 6 of the Palestine Mandate. Immigration is the heart of the purpose of the Mandate. To suspend it for reasons other than economic is to deal a blow to its validity. When the Arab delegation left London, the Government declared that it could not concede their demands, in which was included the demand that Jewish immigration be suspended. After the Arab delegation had left London, ostensibly defeated, shouting defiance to the Government, indicating by their tones that they had been dreadfully defeated, the Colonial Office deliberately turns this defeat into what seems to be a triumph. To us, words of assurance; to the Arabs the satisfaction of their unreasonable demand.

"The Zionist Organization has been temperate, compromising and opportunistic. It has met Government assurances with the utmost of confidence. It has given frequent expression to its appreciation of the difficulties that involve the British Government in its imperial tasks, which impinge also upon Palestine. The Zionist Organization has refrained from utilizing the violent methods and the hysterical utterances practised by the Arabs in their approach to Government. It was thought that a nation of Western civilization would appreciate calmness and sobriety and reliance upon the justice of a cause.

"It seems, however, that these methods are not effective in bringing about an appreciation of the justice of our cause at the hands of the Government of England. We have been mistaken in the character of our friends in the Government. After the August disorders, some tangible expression of sympathy with the wrongs inflicted upon the Jewish people was expected of the Mandatory Government. In place of correction of a mistake, the Government delayed action by the appointment of a Commission of Inquiry. The Commission of Inquiry issued a report, in which blatant nonsense was accepted as statement of fact, in which fundamental policy was disposed of with the easy assurance of mediocre minds. Every intelligent observer of Palestine affairs knows that there is no basis for the assertion that Palestine cannot contain a very large increase of economically self-supporting new settlers.

"While engaged in an impartial survey of the field, having sent another expert to ascertain the facts that have been quite expertly established, it proceeds to prejudge the status quo by temporarily checking the new immigration, which is urgently needed. It wantonly interferes with the orderly processes of administration in Palestine, over-rules the High Commissioner in his estimate of the economic capacity of the land.

"The indignation of the Jews of the world cannot be controlled. This is a dastardly violation of promises made, of covenants agreed to, of policies repeatedly declared in international tribunals. If the Mandatory Power wishes to regain the confidence of the Jews of the world, it will, without delay, rescind the order of the High Commissioner, and authorize him to open the doors of Palestine to the immigration which he has approved."

CONFIRMATION—A SYMBOL OF EMANCIPATION

On Shabuoth all Liberal synagogues and many semi-Liberal synagogues will observe the Confirmation Ceremony. On this day both boys and girls will pledge their loyalty to Judaism.

Confirmation is a symbol of the emancipation of Jewish womanhood. In traditional Judaism woman had no participation in the synagogue life. There was no provision for her giving public expression to her assumption of religious responsibilities. The religious majority of the boy was expressed by the Bar-Mitzvah—for the girl there was no institution of this kind. The Reform Movement in Judaism changed this inferior position of woman when, in 1811, it introduced the Confirmation Ceremony. This ceremony is rapidly becoming part of the ritual of every modern congregation. And this is as it should be.

The modern Jewess demands her right to participate in congregational life on a par with the man. Thinking Jewish womanhood will not for any length of time tolerate the Oriental view which Orthodoxy still maintains with regard to woman. It is to be regretted that in many synagogues emphasis is still laid on having ten men present before the service can be held. If there be one hundred women and only nine men, the public worship must be delayed until a tenth Lord of creation makes his appearance. But a mighty process of deorientalization even in the Orthodox Shul is to-day at work! Jewish womanhood is bound to participate more and more in all phases of Jewish life, especially within the synagogue, with the onward march of progress.

BRANDEIS—THE SAVIOUR

The American Zionist Organization must find itself in a precarious state. How else explain the gestures and peace offerings made recently to Brandeis for a return of his leadership in the movement.

Nine years have passed since the Brandeis-Mack group withdrew from participation in the Z.O.A. During these nine years—the claim of Brandeis "that the economic development in Palestine is paramount"—has been vindicated.

Brandeis and his group have defined the conditions under which they will once more return into the Z.O.A. The demands seem to be justifiable. A complete reorganization of the Zionist Organization, in methods of control, in methods of management, in personnel, must take place at once to prevent a complete collapse of Zionism in America. I have my doubts whether the "old guard" will be willing to consent to the request of the Brandeis-Mack Group. But the only Saviour for American Zionism appears to be Brandeis. What an opportunity for the Zionists who will gather in convention in Cleveland! In their hands lies the destiny of the Z.O.A. May they have the courage to submit to the demands of Brandeis and thus save the Zionist Organization of America from oblivion!

THE BELOVED JUDGE

The Hon. William Lewis of Philadelphia was in Montreal last week. It was good to see the Judge here even as it was splendid to have met with him in Jerusalem last summer. Judge Lewis is one of the interesting workers in present Jewish life. Few have given of their personal service towards Zionism and all Jewish work as much as this fine, genial Litwack of Philadelphia. He seems to be continually on the go for one cause or another. The best place to find him is in the railway stations.

During the next two months "Commentaries" may not appear regularly, as I am on vacation. My best wishes for a pleasant summer to all of my readers!

PROTEST PALESTINE IMMIGRATION SUSPENSION ORDER

Revocation of the order suspending immigration to Palestine was urged upon the British Government in a statement addressed by Felix M. Warburg, chairman of the administrative committee of the Jewish Agency.

The statement was handed to the British Ambassador, Sir Ronald Lindsay, in Washington, May 22, with a request that he should transmit it to his government. A copy was given to Secretary of State Stimson.

The statement was authorized at a special meeting of the American members of the administrative committee of the Jewish Agency held at the offices of Mr. Warburg.

Among those present were Bernard Flexner, Judge Julian Mack, Louis Lipsky, Baruch Zuckerman, Morris Rothenberg, Judge William Lewis, David M. Bressler, Solomon Loewenstein, Alexander Kahn, James N. Rosenberg, Mrs. Robert Zold, Gedaliah Bublick and Rabbi Aaron Teitelbaum.

The Jewish Agency, according to the mandate for Palestine, has to advise and cooperate with the administration of Palestine in such economic, social and other matters as may affect the establishment of the Jewish national home and the interests of the Jewish population in Palestine.

All the Palestine Jews, including the extreme orthodox, united May 22 in a peaceful general strike as a demonstration of their strong resentment against the British government's action in suspending Jewish immigration. A mass protest meeting was held a week ago and a memorandum was presented to the High Commissioner, Sir John Chancellor, May 21, demanding free immigration.

The Jews one and all obeyed the Jewish National Council's appeal to cease work in all the towns and colonies. All road transport was stopped and no Jewish vehicles were seen on the roads. Stores, banks, offices, schools, public institutions and theatres were closed. The post-offices were deserted by the usual mail day crowds. The Jews also refrained from railroad travel.

"This general strike is a demonstration of nation-wide solidarity, serving to give the strongest expression of a new feeling toward the mandatory government to world public opinion. Our appeal is universal. Jewry gathers strength to augment the Renaissance of the Jewish people and vigorously to combat the infringement of the fundamental right of the nation to immigrate to Palestine," said the Jewish National Council.

The chief rabbinate issued a call to all Jews to attend the synagogues and special prayers were recited. A memorial service was held for the Jews massacred in the riots last August. Moving scenes were witnessed in the synagogues, where many beat their breasts. Psalms were said and the shofar (a ram's horn, usually blown only on the day of atonement and the New Year) was sounded.

Chief Rabbi Kook said: "Without entering into the political aspect of the question, I am, nevertheless, of the opinion that the suspension of immigration undermines the foundation of Israel's existence in the Holy Land. Therefore, I have directed special prayers be said."

It is understood on good authority that the governmental commission, consisting of Deputy Treasurer Johnson and two others, which was appointed to consider the Arab peasants' position, has submitted the following proposals, among others:

1. That no Arab land sales to Jews shall be permitted until Sir John Hope Simpson's report has been received by the British Government.

2. That a law similar to the five Feddans act of Egypt shall be introduced forbidding any Arab peasants to sell land if he has less than eighteen acres for cultivation.

3. That legislation be introduced prohibiting the sale of more than 250 acres in one transaction.

The leader of the Jewish group in the Polish Parliament and chairman of the Zionist organization in Poland, Dr. Farbstein, called on the Acting Minister of Foreign Affairs to ask the Polish Government's support in the Zionists' campaign for lifting the embargo on Jewish immigration into Palestine, recently imposed by the British authorities.

The Zionists maintain the Polish Government, which was among the States that signed the treaty by which Great Britain received the mandate in Palestine, is most vitally interested in enabling Jewish immigrants to enter Palestine, especially as the bulk of the Jewish settlers come from Poland.

Many meetings to protest against the embargo were held all over the country. The British Government was assailed by Zionist speakers.

The Jews of America are called upon to protest the suspension of Jewish immigration into Palestine by the British Colonial Office, in a cablegram sent by the Jewish National Council (Vaad Leumi), the representative body of Palestinian Jewry. The cablegram addressed to Zionist Organization of America, urges a demand that the ban on immigration into Palestine be abolished. The general strike observed by the Jews of Palestine Thursday, May 22, should not be interpreted as an expression of helplessness and despair, but rather as a call to Zionists throughout the world to continue and increase activities aiming towards the upbuilding of the Jewish National Home, in accordance with the provisions of the Palestine Mandate entrusted to Great Britain by the League of Nations, stated a cable message dispatched from Jerusalem an hour before the general strike began by M. M. Ussishkin, President of the Jewish National Fund of Jerusalem.

Brandeis Demands Change by Zionists

Demands for complete reorganization of the Zionist Organization of America, "in methods of control, in methods of management, in personnel and in finance," are included in the terms submitted to the Zionists May 22 by Justice Louis D. Brandeis of the United States Supreme Court in answer to the organization's overtures calling for the return of the so-called "Brandeis Group" of Zionists in this country.

The group has taken no active part in the organization's work since a rift over organization policy that occurred almost ten years ago.

The statement outlining the reforms deemed necessary by the Brandeis group was signed by Justice Brandeis, Judge Julian W. Mack, Jacob De Haas and Robert Szold, following a conference between the signatories and four members of the administration committee of the Zionist Organization in America, Rabbi James Heller, Dr. Israel Goldberg, David Freiberger and Dr. Nathan Ratnoff.

Action on the stand of the Brandeis group as set forth in the statement will be considered at the Zionist convention to be held in Cleveland next month. The statement is expected to create much discussion, since it is the first indication given by the Brandeis group that it would be willing to resume its Zionist activities since the rift occurred at Cleveland in 1921.

"Your committee," wrote Justice Brandeis, "has courteously suggested that our group resume some way, to some extent at least, active participation in the work of the Z.O.A., which terminated in 1921, through the action of the convention.

"The experience of the last ten years has confirmed the views expressed on July 14, 1920 in the Zebland memorandum, that the efforts of the Zionists should be directed primarily to the economic development of Palestine. In our judgment the best guarantee which we can create for the realization of our national ideals in Palestine is widespread cooperation in a carefully devised plan of economic development which will make practical immediate increased settlement by Jews in Palestine.

"We believe that the Z.O.A. can through such activities, become an important instrument in strengthening the spiritual and intellectual ideals of the movements in America, as well as in the practical aspects of a national economic effort.

"We believe the Jewish Agency will welcome the cooperation of Z.O.A., not only alive to the many problems that press upon it but earnestly devoted to their solution.

"To this end we deem it essential that there be complete reorganization of the Z.O.A. in methods of control, in methods of management, in personnel and in finance."

A detailed plan to be followed in working out the administrative changes is included in the statement with a request that it be submitted to the convention in June.

That the Brandeis group will not consider a resumption of activities with the Z.O.A. unless the terms are accepted is made clear in the statement that:

"Unless these conditions are complied with, we think we can best serve the cause by confining the efforts which we are now making in various ways for Palestine development. If all of the conditions are satisfied, we shall be willing to make the attempt to find the men needed for worthy and adequate management and to secure their support to serve."

Rumanian Jews Plan Defense

Since Professor Alexander Cuza, the anti-Semitic leader, was elected to Parliament in a recent election there has been a revival of minor anti-Semitic disorders in Rumania which appear to be supported by the anti-Semitic wing of the Liberal party.

In Galatz an anti-Jewish "Iron Guard" has been organized that has frequently attacked Jews in the open streets. In some Rumanian cities Jewish cemeteries have been profaned and gravestones overturned.

Jewish pedestrians have been molested by Czarist supporters in the streets of the capital.

The government has ordered suppression of the riots and arrests of the rioters, but local authorities have not shown much energy in carrying out these orders. In several cities, therefore, the Jews have decided to establish their own defense organizations.

Louis Lipsky Addresses Toronto Zionists

"That the economic requirements of Palestine shall be the register and measure of immigration into Palestine." and "the Zionist organization cannot concede that immigration into Palestine should be based upon political considerations of the moment." were two statements by Louis Lipsky, President of the Zionist Organization of America, the United Palestine Appeal banquet in the King Edward Hotel.

Rabbi Stephen Wise, announced as speaker, sent this telegram: "Cannot adequately express my regret because I am unable to join you at banquet tonight, to which I have looked forward. Never before was need more urgent. Most affectionate greetings." A. J. Frieman and Rabbi S. Sachs spoke. Contributions exceeded $30,000, of the $65,000 objective. H. Drive a Six and know the difference

TAKE the wheel of the new Chevrolet Six and you will discover, immediately, why it is wise to choose this six! No vibration! No roughness! For nothing less than six cylinders can give you six cylinder smoothness. And Chevrolet—a Six—is actually one of the lowest-priced—cars you can buy.

You will appreciate the spirited performance of Chevrolet's powerful 50-horsepower valve-in-head motor. You'll marvel at Chevrolet's unsurpassed economy of gasoline and oil! You'll be grateful for the riding comfort of its lengthwise-mounted springs, with their self-adjusting shackles, and Lovejoy shock absorbers, front and rear.

The new Chevrolet Six is equipped with Fisher bodies. This gives you a low-swung, smarter car—with extra wheelbase—longer lines—deeper cushions—wider seats—finer fabrics and more leg-room. A genuine honeycomb radiator, large balloon tires and variety of color harmonies are further refinements that add to the beauty of the new Chevrolet Six.

Call us on the telephone, now. We will send a car to your door for you to drive. It will take you only a few minutes time to learn why it is wise to choose this Six. Do it—today! Be sure to ask about the G.M.A.C., General Motors' own plan of convenient payments, and about the complete General Motors Owner Service Policy.

BRAZILIAN TRACTION

An increase in net earnings of $40,981 at $2,374,333, over the corresponding period last year are indicated in the Brazilian Traction, Light & Power Company's April statement of earnings. Gross at $4,127,492 and working expenses at $1,753,159 show moderate increases.

Gross earnings of the company for the four months of the current fiscal year, ended April 30, amounted to $15,835,315, an increase of $216,078 over those for that period last year. On the same comparison working expenses gained $101,705 at $6,803,036. Net revenue for the period accordingly was $9,032,279, an increase of $114,373 over that for the corresponding period of last year.

LAKE SUPERIOR CORPORATION

In local banking circles, it is stated that Sir Frederick Williams-Taylor, vice-president of the Bank of Montreal, since returning to Montreal, has been closely identified with some reorganization plans in connection with Lake Superior Corporation.

Sir Frederick, when seen in connection with the matter, was unwilling to discuss anything at the present time. In other circles, close to Lake Superior Corporation, however, it is stated that plans have been pretty thoroughly worked out and are likely to take definite form in the near future.

BRITISH AMERICAN OIL

Officials of British American Oil Co. have given absolute denial to a rumor which has been in circulation to the effect that this company has offered to buy in the shares of Supertest Petroleum at $40. per share. "Absolutely nothing doing", was the emphatic statement, when enquiries were made at British American offices. "We have had no negotiations whatever regarding Supertest".

Ford of Canada Shows Earnings of $3.15 a Share on Stock

THE pamphlet report of Ford Motor Company of Canada, Ltd., throws new light on the performance of the company in 1929, and reveals the fact that on the combined Class A and Class B stock issued and fully paid profits for the year were equal to $3.15 per share. The amount of stock issued and fully paid at the end of 1929, according to the statement was as follows:

Class "A" stock	1,588,956 shares
Class "B" stock	70,000 shares

Profits from operations, after depreciation, were $5,461,103 while dividends from affiliated companies amounted to $168,477, making a total net income of $5,629,581. It was after provision of $396,762 for income tax, that net profits of $5,232,819 were shown, equal to $3.15 per share on the combined stocks.

Reserve for depreciation stood at $13,115,185 at the end of 1929, as against $11,117,467, representing an increase of $1,997,618. As operating profits were $5,461,103, after depreciation, this means that gross profits amounted to $7,458,721. Allowance for depreciation therefore equalled 27 per cent of gross profits which is abnormally high, but burying this amount into properties serves to augment the equity behind the shares.

Investments in bonds of Ford Co. of Canada at the end of 1929 showed an increase of no less than $9,044,095.

The cash position of the company shows an improvement of no less than $10,619,010, as the following indicates:

Cash	$6,159,541
Owing to banks, less cash on hand	4,459,469

CANADIAN COTTONS

A further sharp drop in earnings reflecting the general depression that prevailed in the textile industry over a difficult period is shown in the financial statement of Canadian Cottons, Ltd. for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1930.

Operating profits for the year amounted to $75,574 as compared with $255,946 in the preceding report. Interest on investments amounted to $135,570, making a total income of $211,144, against the 1928-29 item of $398,755. Bond interest accounted for $139,472, and after provision for bad debts, $13,958, there was shown a balance applicable to dividends on both classes of securities of $57,714, against $240,910 in preceding year. Payment in preferred dividends at $219,690, thus entailed drawing on surplus to the extent of $161,976, and payment of three quarterly common dividends absorbed a further $162,930, making a total ap-

NORANDA MINES

Noranda has taken steps to more carefully regulate the shipment and sale of copper since co-operating with the Copper Export Association, not as a member, but as a foreign company. A further measure of co-operation this year which may entail curtailing of part of Noranda production would not be regarded as a hardship. Copper at 12 cents per pound has generally been regarded as a sound investment in years gone by.

For the greater part of the first quarter of the current year Noranda received an average of close to 14 cents per pound for its copper. From present appearances, the average for the second quarter may be down to around 13. This would suggest an average of 15 cents or possibly 13.5 per pound for the full half year.

LAKE SHORE MINES

Unofficial estimates of Lake Shore's March and April production indicate little change as compared with the preceding months. Recovery is said to be running around $17. per ton and it is predicted the stepping-up of mill capacity to 2,000 tons daily will not materially lower this grade.

WRIGHT-HARGREAVES

The mill at Wright Hargreave should be able to treat 22,500 tons per month, within the next 60 days, according to reliable word. Production will then be increased to between $2,500,000 and $3,000,000 with profits likely to exceed $100,000 per month.

FALCONBRIDGE NICKEL

Profits being realized by Falconbridge Nickel Mines at Sudbury appear to have reached a rate of over $80,000 per month. Crude ore being drawn from the mine at the rate of nearly 2,000 tons a year is yielding a profit of around 30 per cent of the gross.

Sales of nickel show every promise of being satisfactory. The fact that the enterprise had not reached its capacity at the time of the current business recession throughout the world is a factor in favor of Falconbridge

KIRKLAND LAKE GOLD

Diamond [illegible] ing is said to have commenced at [illegible] 4,000-foot level of the Kirkland [illegible] Gold Mines, preparatory to carrying [illegible] development work to depths below the [illegible] present working levels of the mine. It [illegible] probable that the hoisting facilities in [illegible] at the 2,475-foot level will be the largest in any Canadian [illegible] mine, allowing for development [illegible] depth from which the ore is being [illegible] in this mine, recent reductions [illegible] seen running at a high rate. Mill [illegible] are also said to be up. The mill is [illegible] to be treating approximately 35 [illegible] of ore per day.

HOLLINGER GOLD MINES

According [illegible] reports at present the Hollinger Gold Mines is averaging around $7 [illegible] ton. The ore is proving easy to treat and estimates have been made of [illegible] 20 cents per ton being lost in the tailings. In a new mill, however, wherever it is known that considerable gold becomes distributed in the circuit it would be scarcely possible as yet to estimate just exactly what the tailings loss is. The main point is that the plant is working efficiently.

Mention is heard from those closely identified with Howey that the costs of operation are around $3.50 per ton. This would automatically suggest a profit of possibly $3.25 per ton.

SAN ANTONIO MINES

In driving a crosscut toward the downward continuation of the high-grade vein which has attracted interest toward the San Antonio Mines, another deposit of rich ore has been intersected. This newly found deposit lying between the shaft and main deposit apparently does not extend to the upper levels. The occurrence of the vein and the presence of gold deposition at that horizon has been interpreted as an indication that mineralization extends to great depth on the property.

AREA MINES

It is now understood that Area has completed plans for a resumption of surface operations. Success at Amulet lends encouragement to the Area operation. Aldermac, in the same field, is expected to announce plans for a new mill, which would provide for the use of a sulphur extracting process, any day now. The company is understood to have sufficient funds coming from stock options to finance this work.

DALHOUSIE OILS

The review of activities of Dalhousie Oil Co. covered at the fourth annual general meeting held in Calgary on May 15th, was followed with considerable interest by shareholders present. No complaints were raised as to the policy followed by the company and the published annual report was adopted unanimously. Net profits of nearly $50,000 was shown on the year's operations with a surplus of assets over liabilities of $117,828.

COMMONWELATH PETROLEUM

It is unofficially reported from the Red Coulee field that the Commonwealth Petroleum well drilled into water at a depth of 2,617 feet last week. This well lies about one mile northeast of the Vanalta producing wells, on property acquired under a royalty basis from A. P. Con. The well failed to find gas in the Sunburst formation as was the case in the Vanalta and other wells in the border field, and deeper drilling failed also to reveal oil. It was reported, strong pressure hurled the tools six feet in the hole where they lodged.

DE FOREST CROSLEY

De Forest Crosley Radio Company, Ltd., experienced the most successful period in its history during the fifteen months ended March 31st, 1930. Earnings showed a substantial increase, while the working position of the company was materially improved.

The annual statement, which was presented to shareholders at the annual meeting 23rd May records net profits amounting to $223,994 after making provision for depreciation and obsolescence and after providing for income tax. This was equal to $1.61 per share on the 139,168 shares of capital stock of no par value outstanding. In the previous 12 months period ended December 31st, 1928, profits after all charges were $195,414, equivalent to $1.48 on the split stock, which was divided 4 for 1 in September, 1929.

INTERNATIONAL HYDRO-ELECTRIC

International Hydro-Electric System and subsidiaries report for quarter ended March 31, 1930, net income of $1,707,076 after interest, amortization, depreciation, federal taxes, dividends of preferred and Class A stocks of subsidiaries and minority interest in earnings of New England Power Association and subsidiaries. This applied directly to the Class A stock is equivalent to $1.43 a share on 773,974 no par shares of this stock outstanding at the end of March, and compares with $1,488,476, or $1.96 a share, on 759,164 shares of Class A stock in preceding quarter. All the Class B and common stock is owned by International Paper and Power Company.

POWER CORPORATION

An increase of over 8 per cent in the amount of electric power generated by the Power Corporation group of companies for the month of March as compared with the output for the month of February is reported by Nesbitt, Thomson & Company, Limited. Of the total increase of 13,327,244 kilowatt hours, Southern Canada Power Company, Canada Northern Power Corporation and Winnipeg Electric Company accounted for over 70 per cent. The fact that all the companies report an increase, and that their locations reach from Quebec to British Columbia, indicates a general quickening of industry throughout the Dominion.

MANITOBA POWER

An increase in net earnings of $4,033 for the first quarter of this year compared with the corresponding period of last year is reported by Manitoba Power Company, which operates the Great Falls plant of 168,000 h.p. capacity on the Winnipeg River.

"Sometimes when people censure me,
I tell them without rancor,
That for what it cost me to be free,
I might have had an anchor."

Young Judaea of Montreal will hold a convention May 31st. and June 1. This is a part of the national Jewish youth organization which Zionist speakers refer to as being responsible for educating the Jewish young people to a sense of communal responsibility. Young Judaea is expected to be instinct with the spirit of youth, inspired with the vigorous spirit of the new Palestine, and laden with the high optimism and prophetic purpose of the Jewish rebuilding of Palestine. It must help to supply the needed human resources for the manifold communal activities in which the supply of manpower and womanpower is always inadequate to the need. The contribution of the Jewish youth of this country to American Israel should approximate the contribution of the Jewish youth to Palestinian Israel. Young Judaea cultivates a sense of Canadian and Jewish responsibility rooted in an understanding of Jewish life and in an emotional response to the Jewish problem. (These rolling phrases are all taken from actual speeches).

So it would easily appear that Young Judaea constitutes the real wealth of at least the Zionist world. From the point of view of the organization it is the fine flower of the future and thus something to be cherished and nurtured in preparation for the time when its members have the say in Zionist and other affairs of the community. Nothing should be too good for the assistance of Young Judaea or even good enough. Any request within reason should be granted to a group of this nature, it would seem.

At the Zionist Convention held in Montreal in January the Executive Director, Rabbi J. L. Zlotnik, said in his annual report: "As it is natural for an organization to try to reduce its expenses to the lowest minimum, we must therefore try to spend as little as possible on our activities, even including such work as the upkeep of the Young Judaea Organization. I believe, however, that the time has come to change our attitude in this respect. If we recognize the importance of inspiring our new generation with the ideal of Eretz Israel, then we must recognize the maintenance of the Young Judaea organization as a debt of honor to our nation and as a noble and sacred end in itself. If we engage in the work of Young Judaea we must do it on the proper scale. Such work should either be done well or not undertaken at all. We are now spending $4,000 a year for Young Judaea. In order that this $4,000 should bring results this amount should at least be doubled. The work must once and for all be recognized as a direct aim of our organization and in future reports this should be placed among our activities and not among our expenses; among our assets and not among our liabilities."

There it is in writing. The niggardly $4,000 a year which the Zionist Organization of Canada was spending on Young Judaea up to the time of the January convention was not only picayunish but actually wasteful. Without at least twice the amount to spend the results had to be negligible, according to the Executive Director, altho M. Gelber, of Toronto, "was happy to state that Young Judaea was making wonderful progress and great strides and that he hoped from their ranks many a good Zionist will grow to carry on the noble work of restoring our Homeland in Eretz Israel."

Young Judaea should be a bigger and better and more insistent asker. It should regard itself as worthy of the lavish attention befitting a group over which so many fair speeches are made and for which so much is hoped. The annual orators claim publicly that their youth organization merits the best and Young Judaea should demand of its elders delivery in everything it needs for inspiration, education and expansion. Otherwise it should refuse to play any longer as a comfort to their vanity and a show window of their organization activities. By accepting a dole and existing in a make-shift, aenemic fashion Young Judaea will never amount to much. But it can render its elders more open-handed by going on strike or even crying out loud. It's worth trying, anyway.

Nevertheless, methinks that thou could'st do better with thy strength than employ it on such late-maturing tasks."

When the planter had finished his arduous toil, he sat down beside Honi and partook of a simple meal. Then taking leave of him he made his way homewards.

The afternoon was warm and Honi had eaten a great number of the succulent purple pods, so that he now felt drowsy. Settling himself as comfortably as he could on the hard ground, he leant his head against one of the tree-trunks and composed himself for slumber. Through the shining leathery leaflets which interlaced in the branches above his head, the sun scarcely filtered. His sleepy senses took in the surrounding scene numbly, and the last thing he saw as he settled his head still further back were the quievering branches, amidst which gleamed here and there the small red clusters of carob-flowers, like rubies set in a dark conch. The tinkle of the asses' bells, the far-away bird-calls and the slight soughing of the wind in the branches had all become blurred, and soon faded away, leaving him in a deep sleep.

Slowly the sun travelled lower in the heavens, till it sank over the horizon's purple rim; slowly the dusk deepened into night and the stars shone forth in all their splendour. But Honi Ha'magel slept on. In that hour when all the world of man is silent in slumber, the carob-leaves stirred faintly. A quiver passed over the boughs above Honi's head, and rose like a voiceless prayer to heaven. . . .

Suddenly a star dashed across the sky with extraordinary brilliance, brightening as it fell. It seemed to light upon the spot where Honi lay, but before it reached him it resolved itself into a celestial figure, radiant with more than earthly beauty. Bending low over the sleeper's form, the Angel breathed upon his eyes and limbs. Stretching forth its hand, within which was a shining staff, it drew a circle around his form, leaving the trace in a line of fire. Then raising its wings it soared into the heavens again.

The carob-leaves were silent now, the branches motionless, as if their prayer had been granted.

All night long the circle of fire glowed around the sleeping man's form, leaping so high that it met and formed a fiery cave over him. When dawn broke the flames suddenly became transmuted to stone. Travellers passing by on the road stopped to marvel at this huge rock which had sprung up overnight, not guessing that a man was within.

Honi slept on.

With a feeling of numbness in his limbs the scholar woke and gazed around him. His sleep had been dreamless, and for a while he wondered where he was—he was not sure whether he had fallen into a doze in his own little scanty garden at home or over his books in the Beth Hamidrash. Then he remembered that he had undertaken a journey. All the details flashed upon him again—the long, hot tramp, the laden asses, the stop at the roadside, the man planting the carob-seeds. Ah, yes, he had fallen asleep after his midday meal, he remembered now!

Yet surely his memory was playing him some trick? This was not the place where he had fallen asleep. Sheer dark walls of rock rose in an arch above his head, and through the gloom of his prison only a tiny patch of blue sky was visible. It was impossible to climb that steep wall, as far as he could see there was no outlet. His beard, also which had been of mediocre length and dark brown, had grown snowy white and reached almost to his feet.

With a feeling of unaccountable weakness he rose to his feet and tottered towards the stone wall. He stretched forth his quivering hands to try and find some opening, but as his fingers came into contact with the rock it melted away before him, and he suddenly stood free beneath the open sky. Bewildered as a man in a dream, he stumbled forward.

He was standing in a magnificent grove of tall trees, the smallest of which was forty feet in height. Their swaying branches were laden with a wealth of dark shining pods of rich purple, and a herd of asses was nibbling at the soft grass around their feet. As he stood there in deepest wonderment he beheld a man walking towards him. Every now and again, the stranger paused to pluck and eat some of the fruit that hung from the lower boughs above his head.

Honi tried to address him—strange how thin and small his voice had become!

"Who art thou", he asked, "who eatest of the fruit of these trees as if " were thine?"

The young man turned towards him. At first Honi thought that he was the same one who had planted the seeds. But though he bore a remarkable resemblance to him, he was much younger, and dressed in a totally different fashion.

"These trees are mine," the young man answered. "My grandfather planted the grove over seventy years ago. Should I not enjoy their fruit?"

Honi felt his knees tremble beneath him. The youth hastened to support him.

"What ails thee, old man?" he asked.

"Old man!" echoed Honi. "When I fell asleep yesterday I was not of so many years that I was considered old. Barely thirty-five years was my age. And now thou addressest me as an old man! Alas, alas! My sleep hath been long—seventy years must, indeed, have passed over my closed eyes! These limbs that were then strong with youth are now feeble with years; that blood which then coursed so swiftly through my veins is slow. And those seeds which I saw thy grandfather plant, as I sat in this self-same spot watching him, have now grown into the mature trees.

"Madness, I said it was, to plant a tree of whose fruit one would not live to eat! Ah, fitting hath my punishment been! But the ways of the Lord are all for good, though they be beyond our understanding."

The young man, not knowing whether he was insane or inspired, looked after him curiously while he walked away from the spot.

On he trudged, dragging his weary limbs over the same road as he had come. He shaded his bleared eyes with his wrinkled hands and gazed down the highway. At last, there in the distance, was the village which he had left—yesterday, it seemed. He would return and see what changes had been wrought in seventy years. All those little children who had been pupils of his in the Beth Hamidrash would now be old men; many would be dead. His own son—the little child who used to fetch him from the house of study every evening, who was his joy and delight, for whose sake he had undertaken this ill-fated journey—he would be an old man, perhaps living in the same house surrounded by grandchildren.

It seemed an interminable distance to the village. On the way, a carter took him up and shortened the long tramp. He was a phlegmatic country yokel, yet even he seemed to sense that there was something strange about this wizened figure. He asked him his age and Honi answered "A hundred and five years."

The carter shook his head, muttering "Those be hale years, Master—those be hale years!"

"Where dost thou wish to alight?" he asked him presently.

"If thou takest me to the house of Honi Ha'magel's son, a white-roofed humble dwelling in the third street, I shall be grateful, my friend."

"Honi Ha'magel?" echoed the driver stupidly. "Ah yes, I've heard of him, long ago. They do say that he went on a journey and disappeared. Some say that an evil spirit carried him off, others say that wild beasts fell upon him. It is an old story which my father heard in his childhood. But the house is in the ninth street—maybe the village has grown since you were here last."

Indeed, so it was. The outskirts had spread itself upon the countryside as a wave spreads itself upon the shore. Old familiar lanscapes were obliterated, new scenes had arisen.

Up the cobbled pavement the clumsy wheels rattled, and the old man strained his eyes for a glimpse of his house. There it was, in the sunny street—but how changed! The white-roofed humble dwelling had grown to a stately mansion; the little garden flourished in ordered profusion, tall trees whispered and swayed where formerly not a shrub had graced the bareness, a fountain gurgled where formerly only the dry cobbles of the courtyard had lain. Honi alighted and approached the steps, hesitating.

At that moment a maidservant came out and he addressed her. "Is the son of Honi Ha'magel living here?"

She stared at him. "The son of Honi Ha'magel? Nay, he died many years ago. But his grandsons Abba ben Halkyeh and Hanan the Hidden are still in this town. This is the house of Hanan the Hidden."

"Is he at home?" asked Honi.

"Yea, if thou wilt wait I will send him to thee."

She led him into the interior and he sat down upon a low stool in the sumptuous hall. Presently an old man in rich attire entered and looked at him questioningly.

"Thou wishest to speak to me?" he asked. "My maidservant said that thou hadst asked after my father."

Honi looked into the eyes of his grandson. "Yes," he answered. "I am thy grandfather—thy father was my child."

Hanan was taken aback. He evidently thought that this old man was in his dotage, and he smiled.

"Aye, Grand-dad! And where hast thou been loitering these many years since thy son lived?"

A feeling of desperation seized Honi. Would this self-assured man, so evidently immured in the material things of life, believe him if he told the truth? He paused to collect his thoughts.

"Thou wilt scarcely credit it, I know, for the story soundeth strange even in my own ears. Yet is it not written 'The ways of the Lord are past understanding'? Over seventy years ago, this feeble form was strong and vivid with youth. It was upon a summer's day nearly like this that I left this very house where thy father Halkyeh, my son, bade me farewell, to go upon a journey from which I have returned only to-day. For it happened that God sent a deep sleep upon me because I had doubted the wisdom of his ways. And when I woke I came hither, where I see my own toil fructified! For the house which I left a poor dwelling hath grown into a goodly mansion, and everywhere are evidences of that wealth the seeds of which I planted in my days."

— young Toronto drinks City Dairy Milk

Thousands and thousands of Toronto's children drink City Dairy milk. It is the same good milk that their parents drank—a better-than-ordinary milk, pure, clean, RICH always!

Especially now, when examinations are near and when changeable spring weather affects little bodies, it is wise to insist that each child drink at least a quart of milk a day. For milk that is healthful and thoroughly dependable telephone KIngsdale 6151—the health number!

Factory Inspection Branch: Chief Inspector, JAMES T. BURKE

The Factory, Shop and Office Building Act of Ontario requires that no child under 14 years of age be employed in a factory or shop.

It shall not be lawful for a youth, young girl or woman to be employed for more than 10 hours in one day, nor more than 60 hours in any one week.

In every factory the employer shall allow every youth, young girl and woman therein employed not less than one hour at noon of each day for meals but such hour shall not be counted as part of the time herein limited as respects the employment of youths, young girls and women.

Employees will observe that abstract cards posted in the factories enable them to become acquainted with their protection under this Act.

For particulars as to further requirements the Factory, Shop and Office Building Act of Ontario, communicate with the Chief Inspector of Factories, East Block, Parliament Buildings, Toronto. Telephone Adelaide 1801.

Airing pillows and giving them a good sun bath is splendid, but soft water and pure soap, as used in this laundry, followed by a thorough drying and fluffing, give you positive assurance of freshness and cleanliness. The cost is but one dollar per pair. We also make a specialty of blankets, motor rugs, rag rugs, bathrobes and heavier articles so hard to handle in the home laundry. We have five different kinds of "family wash" services from which you may choose, all moderately priced. Phone us, or stop any of our courteous drivers for prices and particulars.

We all shrink, like cowards, from new duties, new responsibilities. We do not venture to go out of the beaten track of our daily life. Close to us on each side of the road are those whom we might help or save with one good action, one kind word. But we are afraid. We say: "I am not prepared; I am not ready; I have not time; I am not qualified; find some better person; send some one else." Perhaps we have only one talent, and, therefore, instead of using it, we hide it, and when the Master comes we shall meet him with the old answers: "I was afraid, and went and hid thy talent in the earth. Lo! there thou hast that is thine."—James Freeman Clarke.

LOEW'S NEXT WEEK

Can an heiress marry a true bohemian and live happily ever after? Some years ago international society was startled with the announcement that Ellen Mackay and married Irving Berlin. The young bride was heiress to one of the most famous estates in America, the groom was a popular figure in Tin Pan Alley. Here was romance to be matched with the story of Cinderella and undoubtedly Crane Wilbur had this famous love match in mind when he wrote "The Song Writer" for Broadway presentation in 1928.

And now the Talking screen has the story and it is one of the most absorbing romances released this season. "Children of Pleasure, is the film title and the stars are young and popular including such excellent stage and screen artists as Lawrence Gray, Wynne Gibson, Helen Johnson, as the heiress, and Kenneth Thomson, as the young man of leisure who finally wins the heiress.

Love à la mode is given attractive guise in "Children of Pleasure". The story is real, the songs are snappy and tuneful, the gowns are the latest cut and the settings reflect the moods of Long Island hostesses as well as Broadway hostesses.

Jean Bedini and Jules Howard and Company in a very smartly mounted stage revue, will be seen at the head of an excellent vaudeville program, which also includes Ruloff and Elton, Jue Fong, the Chinese Tenor, Hall and Symonds, the Broadcasting stars, and Ed. Sheriff and Company.

Butter—Cream—Cheeses—and Smoked Fish of Every description

Prepared under the supervision of the Home Service Department of Lake Simcoe Ice & Fuel Limited.

TOMATO AND BEAN SALAD

1¼ level tablespoonfuls granulated gelatine
1-3 cupful cold water
2 cupfuls canned tomatoes
2 slices onion
2 cloves
¼ teaspoonful salt
few grains cayenne
1 tablespoonful vinegar
½ cupful kidney beans
½ cupful diced celery
1 teaspoonful finely minced onion

Soak gelatine in cold water five minutes.

Add onion, cloves, salt and cayenne to the tomato and boil ten minutes. Strain through a sieve, add the gelatine and stir until dissolved.

Cool, add vinegar, then add the celery cut into thin slices crosswise, the minced onion, and the beans which have been rinsed in cold water and drained free from moisture.

Mix thoroughly, pour into individual molds and set on ice to harden.

Serve with mayonnaise dressing to which a little onion juice or chopped chives has been added.

COCOA ICE CREAM

4 level tablespoonfuls cocoa
½ cupful sugar
1 cupful milk
1 cupful evaporated milk
1 teaspoonful vanilla

Mix sugar and cocoa with half a cupful of the milk and cook until smooth. Beat with egg beater to remove any possible lumps, then add remainder of milk and stand until cool.

Add evaporated milk and flavoring and freeze in four parts ice to one part salt.

Cream may be used in place of the evaporated milk, or half cream and half milk, as the cocoa is very rich.

"What is the secret of your life?" asked Mrs. Browning of Charles Kingsley; "tell me, that I may make mine beautiful too." He replied, "I had a friend." Somewhere in her "Middlemarch," George Eliot puts it well: "There are natures in which, if they love, we are conscious of having a sort of baptism and consecration: they bind us over to rectitude and purity by their belief about us; and our sins become the worst kind of sacrilege, which tears down the invisibe altar of trust."—William S. Gannett.

The New Serial Story is:

A novel of Jewish traditions and racial pride

A novel of American life

A novel of marriage between Jew and Gentile

Canadian Jewish Review announces that with its next issue it will give you in serial form "The Street of Chains", by Lilian Lauferty, through special arrangement with Harper and Brothers.

The theme of "The Street of Chains" is the effort of the Delevan-Gruenturm families to break the chain of heredity and yet remain faithful to a certain heritage and tradition. It considers from a highly idealistic viewpoint marriage between Jew and Gentile.

The author of "The Street of Chains" was known for years to thousands of newspaper readers throughout the country as "Beatrice Fairfax" who ran a column called "Advice to the Lovelorn." Under her own name her short stories were printed in many magazines. Lilian Lauferty, a descendant of the famous Rothschild family, was born the child of mixed marriage, in Fort Wayne, Indiana; graduated from Smith College; and went to the New York Evening Journal as a reporter. She is married to James Wolfe, of the Metropolitan Opera Company. Her new novel, "The Street of Chains", is one of the best-known books of the year. The mediaeval Ghetto looms large in this book, as the background from whose chains and oppressions the Gruenturm family emerged to make their name famous in banking circles the world over. The characters are descendants of the original pioneer, living in America. Their ancestry is mixed, French Catholic and Irish too, but the strong Jewish strain persists and dominates them with its oriental and mystical tradition. The heroine is Carlie, true to the saga and the ideals of her grandfather, a sensitive, loyal and fine spirit.

The story weaves in and out through her family, telling of parents, aunts and cousins with their conflicting ambitions and emotions. It deals with the ever present problem of assimilation, with the pride of the old race, with the contradictions of the mixed temperaments. Carlie, glorying in her Jewish heritage, is contrasted with Tress who tries to deny hers and meets only unhappiness until she renounces her false ideas of social success. Carlie bears the consequences of Tress' weakness, lives for a dream that proves an illusion, suffers the depths of loneliness and despair. In the end, she turns to the love of a Gentile, and with dearly bought wisdom, but no bitterness, leaves the Street of Chains.

LILIAN LAUFERTY, better known as Beatrice Fairfax, Author of "The Street of Chains."

The book gives a very full and sympathetic picture of the modern Jewish family, of their racial pride and special difficulties. It has no propaganda to preach, but is merely a presentation of the problems of one group of individuals. It is first and foremost a novel, dealing with living people and their relationships, objective in purpose. And these people do live, the large family circle is made active and convincing, while the character of Carlie expands, deepens and grows more beautiful under one's eyes. This is a big, full book, rich in personalities; it is a generous slice of life, largely conceived and created with warmth of feeling and an instinctive understanding of temperament.

Read "The Street of Chains" and get the thrill that a good, absorbing story of life and romance gives you.
